Skull of Dead Man Fractured

The preliminary examination of a 77-year-old man's body found Wednesday night in some high weeds alongside a Houston railroad track showed that the man had two skull fractures.

Jim Perry, of 8313 Big Sandy, a handyman, was found dead in the 3700 block of Holmes Road about 6:10 P.M. Four youngsters reported finding the body.

At first, detectives thought the death was natural. Homicide Detectives Harry Hall and Ira Holmes said they doubted Perry had been struck by a train and apparently had not been robbed. The body was 15 feet away from the track.

An autopsy was ordered for Thursday morning by A. C. Martindale, an investigator in the medical examiner's office.

Relatives of Perry told officers that he was probably taking a short cut home from a housing project where he was employed.

The youngsters, who reported the body to an employee of a nearby oil well supply company, disappeared shortly thereafter.
